

Advantage.pdf I. INTRODUCTION a) In this brief, Mr. A. N. G. Patil has dealt with the topic in a very concise and to the point manner. His presentation gives an overview of the problem by stating the following: “The management gurus recommend the importance of multigenerational planning, inclusive growth and positive discrimination. Positive discrimination is a set of policies which promote equity, thereby promoting inclusion and thus helping growth. Inclusive growth is a goal towards which many developing countries are trying to grow” (Patil, 2011). The problem of our country is lack of skilled human resources. Hence, I have taken for analysis the problem of unemployment and unemployment rate of our country, which is around 15% (Bhumikar, 2010). The strategy of the current government to deal with unemployment is to be industrialize the underprivileged and make them into the exploited class.

This kind of strategy will not be able to remove unemployment but will lead to increase of poverty. Hence, the subject of unemployment has a wide scope and importance. This is why the government is trying to make some policy for this as well as for other problems. B. OBJECTIVES 1) To examine the changes in the topic of unemployment during the period of 1992 to 2007. 2) To see if the changes in the topic of unemployment can be understood through the government policies to promote the employment generation.

3) To observe if the unemployment rate of our country can be understood through the events of the government policies to promote employment generation. C. THEORETICAL FRAMEWORK 1) This theory is based on the idea of the “neoliberal” theory, which is the economic policy of the world trade organization (WTO) for the countries like India. The theory of “neoliberalism” holds that the only way to solve the problems of growth and employment is through privatization, deregulation and outsourcing of the services and, that of state control. According to this theory, the state must be kept at bay and the invisible hand of the market must be allowed to run the country. The government must stay out of business. The problem with the theory of “neoliberalism” is that it does not keep count of its original spirit, which is the welfare of the people. In other words, the theory of “neoliberalism” does not look into the question of growth and employment, but only in the question of keeping the country under the grip of the market. The problem with this kind of theory is that the market becomes more and more of a winner and not a winner. Market is a winner and not a winner. 2) According to this theory, economic liberalization is the best strategy to keep the country under the grip of the market. According to this theory, to keep the
